

ABSTRACT

A communication circuit for use within a vehicle includes a first network port and a second network port that is remotely located from the first network port. The 5 networks are digitally connected together and digitally communicate a signal therebetween. The communication circuit is used between two or more coupled train vehicles.